Facing page: 9, the glazed bridge connection to the top level.
10, one of the subsidiary staircases.
The stair rails are painted fluorescent green and provide a glowing strip of colour against the white.
11, the second-floor bridge, with the subsidiary staircases on the left.
12, one of the four flights of steps which cut up from the glass staircases to each pair of structural frames.
13, the covered area beneath the building, with a ramp to connect to court in the centre and the porter's lodge on the right. The brick wall sets a main entrance frame, and above, a window rising up from it into the building.
